

Elwin, Verrier. Funerary Customs in Bastar State. Man in India, Vol. 25, pp. 87-133. Chotanagpur: 1945.

Yale: NK10 M32 24-25

[This account is duplicated in a reorganized form in 2: Elwin, this file. --Analyst]

Elwin, Verrier. Primitive Ideas of Menstruation and the Climacteric in the East Central Provinces of India. Essays in Anthropology presented to R.B. Chandra Roy, pp. 141-157. Lucknow, 1942.

[This source contains nothing on the Maria or Bison Horn Gond and very little on any of the acculturated Gond groups. --Analyst]

Elwin, Verrier. Leaves from the Jungle: Life in a Gond Village.
London: John Murry, 1936.

[This is a diary based on Elwin's experiences in a Gond village in Mandla District, Central Provinces (not Bastar) during 1932-1936, when he was helping to run a local dispensary and school. It contains incidental ethnographic information. --Analyst]

Elwin, Verrier. The Attitude of Indian Aborigines towards Sexual Impotence. Man in India, Vol. 23, pp. 127-146. Ranchi: 1943.

Yale: NK10 M32 22-23

[This source contains very little information on the Gond. In addition, Elwin does not specify which Gond group is being referred to. Data on this subject is available in 2: Elwin, this file. --Analyst]

Grigson, W. V. A detailed description of Muria dormitory system. Notes on the Aboriginal Tribes of the Central Provinces. Census of India, Vol. I, Part III, Section B. 1931.

[This source was not processed, since the subject is covered in great detail by a later source, 2: Elwin, this file. --Analyst]

Russell, R. V., with R. B. Hiralal. Tribes and Castes of the Central Provinces of India. Vol. 3, pp. 39-143. London: MacNulley & Co., Ltd., 1916.

[This source contains a single chapter on the Gond. Grigson says that it is not too valuable, the data being largely gleaned from papers and reports of administrative officials. "Mistakes were inevitable." Fürer-Haimendorf says Russell's article was the most complete thing on the Gond up to its time. "It suffers to some extent from the faults of any such compilation... full of interesting details but fails to draw a clear distinction among the individual Gond tribes."--Analyst]

Singh, Indrajit. The Gondwana and the Gonds. With a Foreword by Prof. Radhakamal Mukerjee. Lucknow: The Universal Publishers Ltd., 1944.

Pp. ii, iii, ix, 201; 15 plates; glossary

Yale: Nkd72 I37 944s

[This monograph, a doctoral dissertation, is a socio-economic survey, based on field work, of various Gond groups in the Central Provinces and Bastar State. The author is frequently not clear concerning which Gond group he is talking about. Most of the information in this book concerning the Gonds of Bastar State is duplicated in the studies by Grigson and Elwin. For these reasons Singh's monograph has not been processed for the AW32 Gond file. --Analyst]